Our general procedure:

- 1. Complete inventory on site
- 2. Lab tests with materials obtained
- 3. Testing on site under expert guidance of a chemist
- 4. Visit by our service department to create a good starting position
- 5. Training of the operators in the workplace
- 6. Delivery of appropriate products with consistent quality
- 7. Regular evaluation

Technology Center:

Flexoclean employs highly skilled chemists working on assignments of our customers, partners and contacts, as well as new ideas arising from our own team. No assignment is impossible, they love a challenge. Even if a challenge sometimes seems chemically difficult or even impossible, with the creativity of this team, we continue to search for combination solutions.

Production:

We are meticulous in manufacturing our cleaners. All products are produced and checked after receipt of the order. We produce to set quality standards and ensure proper labelling and packaging. Every production batch is checked and the sample is archived.

Service:

Our service department is used in a versatile way. They provide expert support on site. Deep cleaning is done in the print machine (in-line) or if the Anilox rolls are disassembled from the print machine (off-line). In addition to cleaning, commissioned by our sales department, the service department handles the installation of dosing systems and regularly checks the volumes on the anilox.

Order Entry & Logistic:

When receiving an order, the order entry & logistics staff takes care of the correct entering of the ordered products. With this processing, production receives the order and the production can take place for a quick delivery. Then this section takes care of the correct paperwork with the shipments and organizes transport all over the world.

Sales:

Our sales team gives the right advice on customer level. They prepare a proper full inventory at the customer, determine needs and objectives. We work with the conviction to deliver added value in addition to our cleaning products. We work with the customer in finding solutions. Each situation is unique, but with our expertise and disciplines in the various departments, we provide customized solutions.
